Load Securing of Bulk Cargo in Big Bags

By Wolfgang Neumann, EUROSAFE

The biggest part of all transport occurring in Europe and world-wide is not or only insufficiently secured. The share of unsecured cargo could well be far above 50 %. To this end, the industry in Europe needs a combined professional competence and a legal certainty in this field as high as possible.

Uncertainties regarding load securing are high, especially with the transport of bulk material in flexible packaging – above all the FIBC. This form of packaging that we cannot imagine doing without anymore provides enterprises and consumers with cost-optimized logistics. There is hardly any other form of packaging that shows such a high performance and efficiency.

However, flexible packaging can move, subside or may lose its shape under pressure. Here, it is extremely important to evaluate the product behaviour together with its packaging. This can be taken up successfully between the packaging manufacturer and the client. An active and competent cooperation of the FIBC manufacturers is important and can lead to a clear upgrading of the supplier.

The packaging characteristics and impacts have to be regulated in cooperation with the FIBC suppliers by means of international packaging standards. The current status quo in this regard is not satisfactory for industrial enterprises. We are striving for EU-wide standards. The „Best Practice European Guidelines“ of the European Commission may also well be used on developing the first ideas.

Due to the high individuality of bulk material it is not possible, though, to give a generalized answer to decisive questions of load securing. Each shipper has to clarify on his own responsibility whether his product can be transported safely in his FIBC. This refers alike to the truck as well as rail transport or the sea container. The manufacturer of bulk material, at the same time being the main interested party, needs the necessary know-how in order to be able to assess this.

Successful solution concepts for effective and low-cost load securing are nowadays implemented by persons who are very familiar with accident analytics, packaging development, automotive engineering or also process engineering. Here, it becomes certainly clear that individual persons can hardly do this job anymore.

FIBC Import Statistics 2009

The value of FIBC imports to the European Union has dropped considerably in 2009. FIBC imports to the EU27 countries were worth 184.4 million Euros, compared to 358.8 million Euros in 2008. That represents a fall by 48% (see table 1).

The three main exporting countries to the EU 27 in 2009 remained the same as in 2008: Turkey, India and China, who together shared approximately 84% of the total import value. This is followed by Serbia, Thailand and Bangladesh with just under 3% import share each. Serbia improved from rank 7 in 2008 to rank 4 in 2009. Thailand lost one rank and Vietnam who was ranking number 5 in 2008 has fallen behind on rank 8.

EFIBCA AGM 2010 in Istanbul

The European Flexible Intermediate Bulk Container Association (EFIBCA) was holding its Annual General Meeting on 6 May 2010 in Istanbul with 25 participant members and guests, coming from 11 different countries.

EFIBCA is proud to have gained a significant number of new members during the last year. The further development of an "EFIBCA-Cert" quality scheme was confirmed at the AGM. Inadequate quality of FIBC can result in severe injuries and material damage. EFIBCA is therefore committed to increase the market awareness for quality issues through the development of a certification scheme.

The AGM further decided on the launch of a bi-annual EFIBCA newsletter and an FIBC import statistic which will be published in the newsletter.

EFIBCA is planning an Open Meeting in conjunction with the next Interpack fair in May 2011 in Düsseldorf. The next AGM will be hold in autumn 2011 (date tbd) in Barcelona.
